

Tom Sawyer Software

Berkeley, California 2009

description Office tenant improvement and facade restoration size 7900SF

This project, by means of a major renovation and expansion, re-purposes a hundred old structure for use as headquarters for an international software development company. While essentially a new building, the facades strongly recall the scale and proportion of the existing building, maintaining its place in the context of an established neighborhood.

The interior, by contrast, speaks to the nature of the work which occurs within and is quite modern.

The building incorporates a variety of resource saving strategies and technologies so as to achieve a LEED Silver rating.
