Berkeley, California 2001

description Residential Renovation size 500SF (new)

An historic house, designed by John Hudson Thomas in 1907, had long been neglected and was in need of a great deal of restoration from foundations to roof.

The project consists of a 600 square feet addition cut into the slope under the house fitted out as a professional sound studio, a new kitchen, a new master bathroom, two new elevators, new lighting and landscaping and the careful restoration of exterior and interior finishes.
